CAMDEN CONFERENCE

DEMOCRACY UNDER THREAT

A GLOBAL PERSPECTIVE

FEBRUARY 21-23, 2025

Live from Camden, Maine
camdenconference.org

38th
Annual

The word democracy itself was coined in ancient Greece—

democratia, combining demos (people) and kratos (rule)—and for at least 2,500 years we have been trying to figure out what it means. Here are some thoughts to ponder about democracy through the ages.

“ There never was a democracy yet that did not commit suicide. ”

John Adams, 1814

George Bernard Shaw, 1903

“ Democracy substitutes election by the incompetent many for appointment by the corrupt few. ”

“ So long as men worship the Caesars and Napoleons, Caesars and Napoleons will duly arise and make them miserable. ”

Aldous Huxley, 1932

E.B. White, 1943

“ Democracy is the recurrent suspicion that more than half of the people are right more than half of the time. ”

“ People are always teaching us democracy but the people who teach us democracy don't want to learn it themselves. ”

Vladimir Putin, 2007

Maria Ressa, 2019

“ If you want to rip the heart out of a democracy, you go after the facts. That's what modern authoritarians do. You lie. All the time. Then, you say it's your opponents and the journalists who lie. ”

This weekend we will explore together complex and disturbing international trends that seem to be threatening democracy globally. The result has been a decline in individual freedom in many countries and a strain on international relations. We sense these are real threats even though more countries held national elections in 2024 than ever before in human history.

The story of threats differs by country, so we will examine case studies as well as global trends. Trends are not necessarily destiny, so we will consider pro-democracy pushbacks and the crucial role of the free press. We will evaluate the growing political clout of populist, nationalist, and ethno-religious leaders in an era characterized by economic inequality, growing international rates of migration, and shifting conceptions of national identity.

The mission of the Camden Conference is to foster informed discourse on world issues. We like to say we bring the world to Maine. We are serious about these ambitions. It is also true that attending the annual February conference is as much an emotional and community-building exercise as it is an intellectual experience. There is a buzz in the air at our venues. It is exciting to be surrounded by so many community members, including high school and college students, who are interested in such important issues and that impressive presenters have travelled to Maine in mid-winter to speak to us. New, sometimes troubling, and always complex ideas are flying around rapidly as we strain to remember and synthesize what we are hearing.

We rely on a wide range of people. David Brancaccio is joining us once again as moderator, bringing his deep knowledge, sense of humor, and quick wit. Our new Conference producer, Josh Povec, leads a crew that maintains our high production values. Behind it all are several dozen dedicated volunteers and our incredible two-person staff: Executive Director Kim Scott, and Administrative Coordinator Peter Mattox. What a great team!

If you are a Camden Conference member or volunteer—Thank You! If you are not yet a member, please consider supporting us. If you want to be even closer to the action, please consider volunteering. You will find it to be interesting, educational, convivial, and rewarding. Explore our website for more information, or scan the lists of volunteers, members, and supporters printed in this program, find people you know and ask them about their experience.

Wayne Hobson, President

WAYNE HOBSON is a retired academic who moved to Rockland from southern California in 2005. He served his entire academic career in the American Studies Department at California State University, Fullerton, which he joined after earning a PhD in History from Stanford University. His research and writing interests focused on the evolution of American public memory. He served as chair of his academic department, as the director of the university's honors program, as the university's director of academic advisement, and as president of the California American Studies Association.

Moderator

DAVID BRANCACCIO is Host and Senior Editor of American Public Media's Marketplace Morning Report. David often focuses on regulation of financial markets, the role of technology in labor markets, the history of innovation, digital privacy, sustainability, social enterprises and financial vulnerability in older adults. His work has earned some of the highest honors in broadcast journalism, including the Peabody, the duPont–Columbia, the Emmy, and the Walter Cronkite awards. David has co-produced several documentaries including Fixing the Future, about alternative approaches to the economy, and On Thin Ice, about climate change and water security, with mountaineer Conrad Anker. He is the author of Squandering Aimlessly, a book about personal values and money, and is producing a documentary about the intersection of art and science. David grew up in Waterville, Maine, and has degrees from Wesleyan and Stanford. He enjoys moderating public policy discussions at the Aspen Ideas Festival, Chicago Ideas Week and the Camden Conference. He likes making beer and big rockets. Among his heroes are Edward R. Murrow and Wolfman Jack.

Keynote Speaker

MARIA RESSA co-founded Rappler, the top digital-only news site that is leading the fight for press freedom in the Philippines. As Rappler's CEO, Maria has endured constant political harassment and arrests by the Duterte government, forced to post bail ten times to stay free. Rappler's battle for truth and democracy is the subject of the 2020 Sundance Film Festival documentary, A Thousand Cuts. For her courage and journalistic integrity, Maria has received numerous accolades. In October 2021, she was one of two journalists awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in recognition of her "efforts to safeguard freedom of expression, which is a precondition for democracy and lasting peace." In 2022, she was appointed by the United Nations Secretary-General to the Leadership Panel of the Internet Governance Forum and serves as its Vice-Chair. She is a Professor of Practice at the Institute of Global Politics at Columbia University's School of International and Public Affairs, where she leads projects related to artificial intelligence and democracy. Maria authored Seeds of Terror: An Eyewitness Account of Al-Qaeda's Newest Center of Operations in Southeast Asia and From Bin Laden to Facebook. Her most recent book, How to Stand Up to a Dictator, was released in November 2022 and has been translated into more than 20 languages. Maria focuses critical attention on the breakdown of our global information ecosystem and how interconnected communities of action can hold the line to protect democratic values.

Speakers

DAVID STASAVAGE is a political scientist known for his work on democracy and political economy. He is the author of The Decline and Rise of Democracy: A Global History from Antiquity to Today. Deemed "one of the most important books on political regimes written in a generation" by Steven Levitsky, New York Times–bestselling author of How Democracies Die. Stasavage's work provides a new understanding of early democracy in multiple regions of the world and traces the evolution of modern democracy. Stasavage earned his BA at Cornell University and his doctorate from Harvard. He taught at the London School of Economics from 1999 to 2005, acquiring the rank of reader. While in Europe he worked for the World Bank, the Organisation for Economic Cooperation, the Centre for the Study of African Economies and the Bank of England. He is the Carroll and Milton Petrie Professor of Politics at New York University's Department of Politics and an Affiliated Professor in NYU's School of Law.

Speakers

MATTHEW GOODWIN is Honorary Professor at the University of Kent and Senior Visiting Professor at the University of Buckingham. His academic background includes studies in Detroit, the Czech Republic, and Canada, reflecting his international perspective on political issues. He holds a PhD in Political Science and in 2014, he was awarded the prestigious Richard Rose Prize, given to one scholar annually for their contribution to the study of politics. He engages widely with governments and corporations around the globe. He has consulted and given talks to the UK Prime Minister's Office, the President of Germany, U.S. State Department, European Commission, Google, Deutsche Bank, UBS, JP Morgan, Rothschild and Cie, Trilateral Commission, and Goldman Sachs. He is the author of the Sunday Times bestseller Values, Voice and Virtue: The New British Politics, and the Sunday Times bestseller National Populism: The Revolt Against Liberal Democracy. He co-authored the UK's 2015 Political Book of the Year, Revolt on the Right. He is also the author of the 2nd biggest Substack blog in the UK and the 5th biggest in the World Politics Substack leaderboard. This is a weekly newsletter available at mattgoodwin.org.

DAVID ELCOTT, the author of Faith, Nationalism and the Future of Liberal Democracy and A Sacred Journey, has spent the last thirty years at the intersection of interfaith and ethnic community building. He was the Taub Professor of Practice in Public Service and Leadership at NYU heading social justice programs. He also co-directed the Dual Degree Program of the Skirball Center for Hebrew and Judaic Studies. In 2013, Dr. Elcott received NYU's Martin Luther King Faculty Award. Upon retirement from NYU, he teaches as part of a SUNY college degree program in Green Haven, a maximum security prison. As Vice-President of the National Center for Learning and Leadership, Dr. Elcott has taught leadership and institutional change in over 50 communities across North America. As Interreligious Affairs Director of the American Jewish Committee and as Executive Director of the Israel Policy Forum, he addressed a wide array of public policy issues while continuing to build interfaith and interethnic coalitions. His research, monographs and training programs have emphasized ways to energize civic engagement and democracy around the world. He has represented the Jewish community in interfaith settings in Europe, South America and Asia.

JOSHUA A. TUCKER is Julius Silver, Roslyn S. Silver, and Enid Silver Winslow Professor of Politics, the Director of NYU's Jordan Center for Advanced Study of Russia, and co-Director of the NYU Center for Social Media and Politics (csmapnyu.org). His research originally examined mass political behavior in post-communist countries, but for the past dozen years he has focused on the intersection of the digital information environment, social media, and politics. He is the co-chair of the external academic team for the U.S. 2020 Facebook & Instagram Election Study, serves on the advisory board of the American National Election Study, the Comparative Study of Electoral Systems, and numerous academic journals, and was the co-founder and co-editor of the Journal of Experimental Political Science. His research has been published in top general scientific journals, including Science, Nature, and Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, and political science journals, including the American Political Science Review, the American Journal of Political Science, and The Journal of Politics. His most recent books are the co-authored Communism's Shadow: Historical Legacies and Contemporary Political Attitudes and the co-edited Social Media and Democracy: The State of the Field. He also served for over a decade as a co-author and co-editor of the political and policy blog The Monkey Cage that was hosted for part of that time at The Washington Post.

JOHN SHATTUCK is an international legal scholar, diplomat and human rights leader. As national staff counsel at the American Civil Liberties Union, he led more than two dozen federal court cases, including a successful challenge to warrantless wiretaps conducted by the Nixon White House. In 1986, he joined Harvard University as Vice President for Government, Community and Public Affairs, taught courses on legislative process, privacy, human rights and civil liberties, and was a senior associate at the Kennedy School of Government. In 1993 Shattuck became Assistant Secretary of State for Democracy, Human Rights and Labor. Shattuck helped negotiate the Dayton Peace Agreement that ended the war in Bosnia and was instrumental in establishing the International Criminal Tribunals for the former Yugoslavia and Rwanda. From 1998-2000 he served as ambassador to the Czech Republic. In 2009, he became president of Central European University (CEU), an international graduate institution in Budapest, Hungary, where he defended academic freedom against the increasingly authoritarian regime of Viktor Orban. He has published over a dozen books, including Holding Together: The Hijacking of Rights in America and How to Reclaim Them for Everyone.

JENNIFER MCCOY is Regent's Professor of Political Science at Georgia State University and Nonresident Scholar at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, as well as Research Affiliate at CEU's Democracy Institute in Budapest. She was named a 2024 Andrew Carnegie Fellow, one of 28 scholars nationwide who will explore political polarization and ways to strengthen American democracy. A specialist on democratic erosion and polarization, mediation and conflict prevention, election processes and election observation, and Latin American politics, Dr. McCoy has authored or edited six books and dozens of articles, including International Mediation in Venezuela, co-authored with Francisco Diez. Her latest volume is Polarizing Politics: A Global Threat to Democracy, co-edited with Murat Somer. Dr. McCoy's research program on Polarized Democracies examines the causes, consequences and solutions to polarized societies worldwide. As director of the Carter Center's Americas Program, she led numerous election monitoring missions and organized President Carter's historic trips to Cuba in 2002 and 2011. McCoy is a life member of the Council on Foreign Relations and co-chair of the Atlanta chapter of the Scholar's Strategy Network. Her next book, Depolarizing Politics and Remaking Democracy (with Murat Somer), is expected in 2025.

COLIN WOODARD is the director of Nationhood Lab at the Pell Center for International Relations and Public Policy at Salve Regina University. A leading expert on U.S. regionalism and nationhood, he is the New York Times bestselling author of six books, including American Nations: A History of the Eleven Rival Regional Cultures of North America and Union: The Struggle to Forge the Story of United States Nationhood. He won a 2012 George Polk Award and was a 2016 Pulitzer Prize finalist. As a foreign correspondent for major newspapers, Woodard reported from over fifty countries across seven continents, covering the fall of communism in Eastern Europe, Balkan conflicts, and climate change in Antarctica. At the Portland Press Herald, he covered Congress, Maine politics, and indigenous rights issues. His work has appeared in leading media outlets including CNN, BBC, NPR, The Economist, and The New York Times. His historical works inspired both an NBC drama and a Ubisoft video game. Born in Waterville, Maine, Woodard graduated from Tufts University and the University of Chicago, and is a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society.

HAL BRANDS is the Henry A. Kissinger Distinguished Professor of Global Affairs at the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS). He is also a scholar at the American Enterprise Institute and a columnist for Bloomberg Opinion. He is the author or editor of several books, including The Twilight Struggle: What the Cold War Teaches Us about Great-Power Rivalry, Danger Zone: The Coming Conflict with China, co-authored with Michael Beckley, and The New Makers of Modern Strategy: From the Ancient World to the Digital Age. His latest, The Eurasian Century: Hot Wars, Cold Wars, and the Making of the Modern World, was released in January 2025. Hal has served as Special Assistant to the Secretary of Defense for Strategic Planning and lead writer for the Commission on the National Defense Strategy for the United States. He is a member of the State Department's Foreign Affairs Policy Board and consults with a range of government offices and agencies in the intelligence and national security communities. His writings have appeared in Foreign Affairs, The Atlantic, The Wall Street Journal, The Washington Post, and other outlets; he has lectured widely on foreign policy and global affairs to audiences in government, academia, and the private sector.

Who We Are

Welcome to the 38th annual Camden Conference! Thirty-eight years is a pretty good run for the somewhat audacious idea that what folks in mid-winter Midcoast Maine wanted was a conference on global affairs. Turned out that's just what they wanted—a good reason to get out of the house, meet and mingle with friends and neighbors, and discuss world events with world-class speakers.

To turn a Dr. Seuss book title on its head, Oh, the places we've been! The Camden Conference had a small but by no means humble beginning. The people who assembled in a meeting room in the Camden Public Library in February 1988 heard National Security Advisor Brent Scowcroft, acting Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger, and Maine's senior U.S. Senator William Cohen discuss The Making of American Foreign Policy: Myth and Reality. Over the following years, audiences grew until the Conferences had to be moved to the Camden Opera House, and when the audiences kept growing, we added livestreaming venues including Rockland's Strand Theatre.

At this point, the Camden Conference is both an organization and an event. The three-day February conference is augmented by year-round educational outreach through Camden Conference in the Classroom, engaging hundreds of Maine students, and by a series of topic-related Community Events with local experts, hosted by our many public library partners.

We have taken on big topics: The Media Revolution: Changing the World, The Global Politics of Food and Water, Afghanistan, Pakistan, India: Crossroads of Conflict, and many more. Our speakers are recognized experts in their fields, drawn from government, academia, business, and the media. We have remained non-partisan and non-profit, and we have stayed on mission, providing “informed discourse on world issues” or, as we like to say, bringing the world to Camden, Maine.

Camden Conference Student Education Programs

Preparing Maine's next generation of global citizens is at the heart of the Camden Conference mission. We bring world affairs into Maine classrooms and welcome students into the broader conversation about critical international issues. The generous support of foundations, corporate sponsors and individual donors makes this vision possible by enabling students from across Maine to participate in the Conference.

Our flagship educational initiative, the Camden Conference in the Classroom program, currently engages fifteen high schools throughout Maine, each adapting the program to their unique educational environment. Some schools offer dedicated year-long or semester courses, while others integrate Conference themes into AP curricula, gifted and talented programs, or independent study projects. For every student—whether attending in person at the Opera House or participating virtually—the February Conference weekend serves as the program's cornerstone event.

The Conference experience extends beyond simply attending sessions. When students gather in one venue, they connect with peers from different parts of Maine, broadening their perspectives through both formal sessions and specially designed student events. These connections create an energetic atmosphere that enriches the Conference experience for all attendees while fostering meaningful dialogue among Maine's future leaders.

Thanks to our donors' steadfast commitment to our student education programs, we continue to provide Maine students with unprecedented access to global expertise and perspectives. This investment in education brings fresh energy to our discussions while preparing students to engage thoughtfully with complex international issues.

Community Events

Each year, the Camden Conference partners with local libraries to organize a vibrant program of free community events related to our conference's annual theme. From lectures by local people with particular area or subject expertise, to book and film discussion groups, these events are offered in a variety of ways. Some libraries present speakers to an in-person audience only, others are hybrid, giving the audience a choice of attending in-person or on Zoom, still others work with speakers to present exclusively online. Some events are recorded, allowing for later viewing on our website. We are very grateful to our seventeen library partners and the dedicated librarians who make it possible for hundreds of attendees to enjoy these events in the months leading up to our conference.

Call for Volunteers

Volunteers power the Camden Conference! Our committees are comprised of people willing to give their time and expertise to planning and executing not only the February Conference, but also the education programs, free community events, and special events that take place throughout the year. We are always in need of volunteers, so if you are interested in meeting and working with a group of like-minded individuals, let us know. We would love to discuss the possibilities with you.

Annual Appeal Donor & Student Education Fund

We wish to thank and acknowledge everyone who enhanced their support of the Camden Conference through the 2024 Annual Appeal and Student Education Fund. The heartwarming success of our first-ever annual appeal helps ensure that we continue to grow stronger and offer the annual conferences on issues that are shaping our world. Our lasting impact on Maine students is made possible only through such generous support.

The 39th Camden Conference

Power, Politics, and Players in Today's Middle East

February 20 - 22, 2026

Live from Camden, Maine

The Middle East region remains one of the world's most intractable trouble spots. It is a volatile arena where regional powers, global interests, and local aspirations intersect in ever-evolving and often violent ways. The 2026 Camden Conference will explore how traditional and emerging powers are reshaping relationships and testing alliances across this globally vital region.

Join distinguished speakers and experts as they analyze the forces driving these regional dynamics.
